2017 Global Strategy and Emerging Markets Conference

Northeastern University, Boston, MA, June 15-16, 2017

Welcome!

The Center for Emerging Markets (CEM) at Northeastern University and the University of Miami CIBER (Center for International Business Education and Research) welcome you to the 2017 Global Strategy and Emerging Markets (GSEM) conference in Boston, MA, on June 15-16, 2017. This conference provides a platform to bring together senior and junior scholars, doctoral students, and practitioners in the fields of international business, strategic management, cross-cultural management, technology strategy, and global entrepreneurship from around the world. This platform aims not only to foster discussion of frontier issues associated with emerging market-related global strategies, but also to create co-learning opportunities between scholars from the U.S. and from emerging economies.

This year's conference theme is the influence of the home country on emerging market multinationals' (EMNCs) internationalization and behavior. The rise of EMNCs serves as a valuable natural experiment for probing the impact of a firm's home country on its international strategy and behavior. The distinguishing characteristic of these firms is how the relative underdevelopment of their home country affects the creation of their competitive strategies. Hence, in this conference, we are looking for novel studies that expand theories and models of the multinational by explaining how the home country affects the internationalization and global strategy of firms.

If you are interested in attending the conference, please register at <http://bus.miami.edu/faculty-and-research/ciber/registration/gsem/index.html>. If you are a Ph.D. student, please use this link to register: <http://bus.miami.edu/faculty-and-research/ciber/registration/gsem/phd-students.html>

We look forward to seeing you in Boston!

Biographies of the Keynote Speakers

Aravind
Cherukuri,
Ocean Spray

Aravind Cherukuri is the Managing Director for the Asia-Pacific region of Ocean Spray Cranberries and a Vice President at Ocean Spray International. In this role, he oversees all sales and marketing of branded beverage and food products in the Asia Pacific region, which is its fastest growing geography, led by China and Korea. Aravind strongly believes that the healthfulness of cranberries, a native North American super-fruit, will greatly benefit Asian consumers. Aravind started his career with Ocean Spray in 2009, managing the manufacturing and supply chain operations in the Asia Pacific and Latin American geographies. He played an important role in the acquisition and integration of Cran Chile—the only cranberry processing and production operation in the Southern hemisphere—which has provided Ocean Spray with a counter-seasonal source of cranberries to support its global expansion. Prior to Ocean Spray, Aravind was the co-founder and COO of a venture capital-funded functional foods company in Boston, MA. He has 10 years of experience in the functional foods industry and supply chain management in the consumer packaged goods industry. Aravind holds an MS in Aerospace & Mechanical Engineering from Boston U. and a BSME from Stony Brook U. in New York.

Donald R.
Lessard,
Massachusetts
Institute of Technology

Donald R. Lessard is the Epoch Foundation Professor of International Management, Emeritus at the MIT Sloan School of Management. His research interests are in global strategic management and project management, focused on the energy sector, with an emphasis on managing in the face of uncertainty and risk. He has published extensively on these topics in academic and professional journals, and is a co-author of Strategic Management of Large Engineering Projects: Shaping Institutions, Risks, and Governance (MIT Press 2001 with Roger Miller). A member of the MIT faculty since 1973, Lessard has served as Deputy Dean of the Sloan School with responsibilities for research, international programs, and executive education; co-chair of the Energy Education Task Force that launched an Institute-wide undergraduate energy minor; and founding director of the MIT Executive MBA, the BP Projects and Engineering Academy, and the Li and Fung Executive Development Program. He also led the MIT-Merrill Lynch Partnership, MIT's first large-scale collaboration with a financial services firm. A leader in international management education, Lessard is a past President of the Academy of International Business and Dean of the Fellows of the Academy. He is a Senior Fellow of the Fung Global Institute, a think tank based in Hong Kong. A senior advisor to the Brattle Group, he has led major consulting assignments with firms, banks, and government agencies throughout the world. Lessard earned his BA in Latin American studies and his MBA and Ph.D. in business administration from Stanford University.
